Types

American

Canadian

English

You might think there is only one breed of Golden Retrievers, but there is actually three different breeds with three different colors the three colors are -- golden, light golden, and dark golden -- the three different types are -- English, Canadian, and American. There are differences between the types of Goldens, but they all fall under the same breed

You can tell which Breed you have by checking their body and coloring. Canadian and American Golden Retrievers tend to have the same body; however, Canadian golden retrievers have thinner fur than the Americans. English Golden Retrievers have a sturdier body than the other golden retrievers, and also tend to have a light golden or white colored fur. To get an idea of what color coat your Golden Retriever puppy will have when it matures, take a look at its ears. The tip of the ears usually show what color the puppies will be after they lose their puppy coat. No matter which type of Golden you have, they'll have a enjoyable behavior. Goldens are renowned for their calm, playful, and friendly disposition.

About Sofie

Sofie is a american Golden retriever. She is very playful and a lot of care. She gets 2 cups of food and 1 bowl of water each day. She loves playing tug and fetching a tennis ball. She hates taking Baths. We only bath her when she rolls in poop or mud and she does that ALOT. Sofie Sheds a lot too. All of our clothes are usually full of dog hair.
